WESTERN PACIFIC

A Word About Camping

Few realize the possibilities of camp life in California. The Western Pacific runs through the very heart of the best camping area in our California mountains. This includes access to almost all of what is known as the Plumas National Forest.

All through this forest are trout streams well stocked; there is clear cold drinking water, and also an abundant amount of fire wood everywhere. Our California people must learn to afford themselves of this wonderful privilege and it is safe to say that if you will go camping one season in this way, you will always want to spend your vacation in your own camp.

Suggestions as to "what to take" for camping outfits and provisions will be gladly made to the uninitiated by application to the Western Pacific Railway. At most of the points on this road a vehicle can be had to transport camp equipment and supplies to camp sites, which are from one to ten miles from the railway and in almost every locality fresh milk, fresh butter, eggs, vegetables and meat can be bought.

It must be remembered that a complete change of climate from the coast is usually very essential for a vacation and can be had only by going entirely away from the coast. This means, of course, away from the Coast Range Mountains and into the Sierras. To people of San Francisco and vicinity this is doubly important and it is the aim of the company to show the possibilities of our National Forest and to help educate people to the many advantages of getting into our own high mountains, the Sierra Nevadas.

Remember that the weather is never hot at the elevation of 6,000 feet and that elevation and more can be obtained in twelve hours' travel to any one of the points in the Feather River Canyon.

How to Secure Camp Sites from the Government

There are many attractive places for summer camping in the Plumas National Forest which are accessible from the Western Pacific Railway. The United States Forest Service encourages the full use of these places by the public. Information regarding them can be obtained from the Forest Supervisor at Quincy, California, or from the local Forest Ranger.

Any citizen is made welcome to camp in any part of the National Forest if he will obey the simple rules to prevent forest fire and refrain from destroying living trees.

The Forest Service grants permits to those who wish to build summer residences or cabins on National Forest land for permanent use. These permits usually allow the use of from one to three acres and require a payment of from $5.00 to $25.00 per year. For public resorts conducted for commercial purposes, the charges are from $10.00 to $50.00 per year. These permits are issued for an indefinite period and will remain in force until abandoned or canceled for cause. NO PERMITS ARE REQUIRED FOR TEMPORARY CAMPING.

All that the Government asks of summer campers is helpful co-operation with the Forest Service in the protection of the forests from fire. The following simple rules for preventing fires are easily followed, and it is earnestly desired that every one who goes into the Forests will remember them:

1. Be sure your match is out before you throw it away.
2. Knock out your pipe ashes or throw your cigar or cigarette stump where there is nothing to catch fire.
3. Don't build a campfire any larger than is absolutely necessary. Never leave it, even for a short time, without putting it OUT with water or dirt.
4. Don't build a campfire against a tree or log. Build a small one where you can scrape away the needles, leaves or grass from all sides of it.
5. Don't build bonfires. The wind may come up at any time and start a fire you cannot control.
6. If you discover a fire, put it out if you can; if not, get word of it to the nearest U. S. Forest Ranger or State Fire Warden just as quickly as you possibly can.

VACATION FARES

Attractively low round trip excursion fares will be made from all stations on the WESTERN PACIFIC RAILWAY to points in the Feather River Canyon for the summer of 1913, tickets being sold from approximately April 29th to October 25th.
